

Contents

Contributors	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
1 Introduction: Cognition, emotion, and aesthetics in contemporary serial television	1
TED NANNICELLI AND HÉCTOR J. PÉREZ
PART I
The nature of contemporary televisual seriality	25
2 Television's temporality: Seriality and temporal prolongation	27
ALBERTO N. GARCÍA AND TED NANNICELLI
3 Multi-plot structure in television serials	47
HÉCTOR J. PÉREZ AND MARÍA J. ORTIZ
4 "Oh my God, they didn't kill Kenny": Seriality and viewer engagement in contemporary animated television	68
OLIVER KROENER
5 Seriality and expressiveness in Mad Men	82
ELLIOTT LOGAN
PART II
Audiences	95
6 From shots to storyworlds: The cognitive processes supporting the comprehension of serialized television	97
JEFFREY E. SAERYS-FOY AND JOSEPH P. MAGLIANO

7	Beliefs, desires, and emotions: A theory of emotions and some implications for the understanding of viewer reactions to TV serials	117
	RAINER REISENZEIN
PART III
	Poetics	139
8	Reaching through time: On seriality, temporality, and twofoldness	141
	MURRAY SMITH
9	Five theses on the difficulty of ending Quality TV series	160
	MARGRETHE BRUUN VAAGE
10	Pop music in television serials: Priming, authorial commentary, and musical memory	176
	BIRGER LANGKJÆR
11	Twin Peaks and the performative poetics of complex television	193
	AARON TAYLOR
12	Parallelism and complex storytelling in film and TV	214
	MALCOLM TURVEY
PART IV
	Value: Aesthetic and beyond	235
13	Audiovisual atmospheres, moods, and metaphoric spaces: Aesthetically rich spaces in complex TV series	237
	KATHRIN FAHLENBRACH
14	Repetition, familiarity, and aesthetic pleasure: Formulaic generic television series	256
	IRIS VIDMAR JOVANOVIĆ
15	Ethics and bad protagonists in serial television drama	273
	CARL PLANTINGA
16	A sense of moment: Appreciating television serials from aesthetic and cognitive perspectives	285
	SARAH CARDWELL
	Index	309