

Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction: Political Citizenship in Modern China Merle Goldman and Elizabeth J. Perry	1
I Imperial and Republican China
1. Citizens or Mothers of Citizens? Gender and the Meaning of Modern Chinese Citizenship Joan Judge	23
2. Citizens in the Audience and at the Podium David Strand	44
3. Democratic Calisthenics: The Culture of Urban Associations in the New Republic Bryna Goodman	70
4. Questioning the Modernity of the Model Settlement: Citizenship and Exclusion in Old Shanghai Jeffrey N. Wasserstrom	110
5. From Paris to the Paris of the East—and Back: Workers as Citizens in Modern Shanghai Elizabeth J. Perry	133
II The People's Republic of China
6. The Reassertion of Political Citizenship in the Post-Mao Era: The Democracy Wall Movement Merle Goldman	159

7. Personality, Biography, and History: How Hu Jiwei Strayed from the Party Path on the Road to Good Citizenship	187
Judy Polumbaum
8. Villagers, Elections, and Citizenship	212
Kevin J. O'Brien
9. Ethnic Economy of Citizenship in China: Four Approaches to Identity Formation	232
Chih-yu Shih
10. Do Good Businessmen Make Good Citizens? An Emerging Collective Identity Among China's Private Entrepreneurs	255
Bruce Dickson
11. Citizenship, Ideology, and the PRC Constitution	288
Yu Xingzhong
12. Law and the Gendered Citizen	308
Margaret Y. K. Woo
13. Constructing Citizenship: The NPC as Catalyst for Political Participation	330
Michael William Dowdle
 III Taiwan
14. Nationalism versus Citizenship in the Republic of China on Taiwan	353
Shelley Rigger
Notes	375
Contributors	457