

CONTENTS

- Preface by professor Stanislav Libenský --- 11
Concept of the book --- 13
Culture under communism --- 17

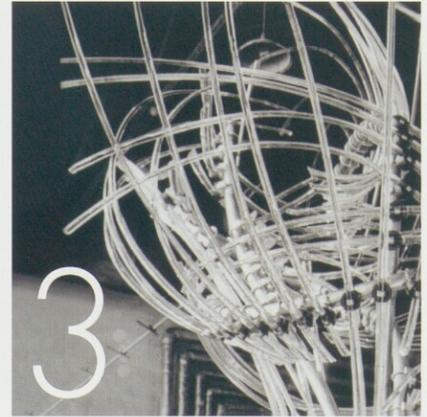

EARLY BEGINNINGS --- 23

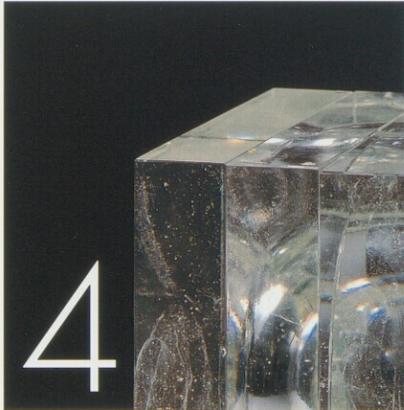

FROM THE SECOND WORLD WAR TO THE 1950's

- 2/1 German occupation and professor Jaroslav
Holeček's School (1939-1945) --- 27
2/2 Restoration of the glass industry and
Schools of Glassmaking --- 29
2/3 The 1950s and the Schools of professors Josef
Kaplický and Karel Štipl (1948-1958) -- 35
2/4 The 11th and 12th Triennale in Milan
(1957 and 1960) --- 43

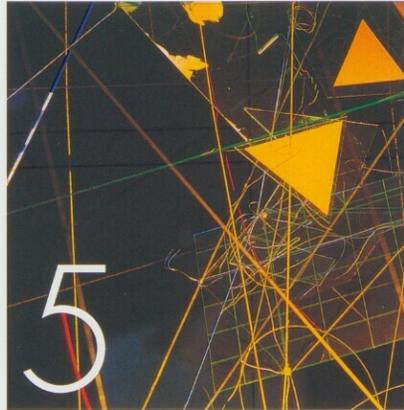

PERIOD OF INTERNATIONAL SUCCESS IN BRUSSELS AND OSAKA

- 3/1 Brussels EXPO (1958)
and the Moscow exhibition (1959) --- 49
3/2 Design - more fiction than fact --- 57
3/3 Optimism of the 1960s --- 63
3/4 Engraved and carved glass --- 67
3/5 Professor Stanislav Libenský's School --- 74
3/6 Montreal EXPO (1967),
Osaka EXPO (1970) --- 80

THE IMPACT OF SOVIET OCCUPATION
AFTER 1968

- 4/1 Gloom of the 1970s --- 89
- 4/2 Commissioned works in architecture --- 93
- 4/3 Hot shaped glass --- 105
- 4/4 Prismatic sculpture --- 113
- 4/5 New movement in the 1980s --- 127
- 4/6 The avant-garde presentation --- 133
- 4/7 Interglass symposia in Nový Bor --- 143
- 4/8 Painting and decorative techniques
on glass surfaces --- 149
- 4/9 The angry generation --- 165

AFTER THE VELVET REVOLUTION

- 5/1 New horizons of the 1990s --- 175
- 5/2 Seville EXPO (1992) --- 185
- 5/3 Changes in the education of young artists -- 191
- 5/4 Melted glass --- 203
- 5/5 Activities during the period of transformation --- 219

QUO VADIS CZECH GLASS? --- 225

- PORTRAITS --- 231
- MEDALLIONS --- 241
- EXHIBITIONS OF CZECH GLASS
AFTER 1945 --- 255
- SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY --- 261
- LIST OF IMAGES --- 275
- INDEX --- 281