THE LEGEND OF BABEL

Giorgio Moroder

The year is 2026, a Dickensian "best of times, worst of times," where total oppression and manipulation of the masses is wielded by the unquestionable power of the few.

Far below the City of Metropolis is the Underground City where machines are operated by the workers who live even further below. Day after day, in mechanical routine, they are forced to the limits of human endurance.

Fritz Lang made this film in 1926. Against his wishes the film was subsequently shortened for its American release which left the story disjointed, difficult to comprehend and caused the loss of many scenes, most of which have disappeared forever.

By following the original script, the novel of the film, recently discovered missing pieces of the film and photographs, Metropolis has been restored as close to its original conception as possible.

Metropolis is now presented with a contemporary score, sound effects and colour.

Lang once said: "To begin with I should say that I am a visual person. I experience with my eyes and never, or only rarely, with my ears—to my constant regret."
