

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1 Modernism, Postmodernism, and Feminism	1
2 Rational/Irrational	11
I Postmodernism and Rationality	11
Gadamer	13
Foucault	17
Derrida	22
Nietzsche: Truth is a Woman	26
II The Feminist Critique of Rationality	30
Language and Reality	30
The "Man of Reason": The Diagnosis	33
The "Man of Reason": The Alternatives	39
III Liberalism and Feminism	47
3 Subject/Object	62
I Postmodern Philosophy and the "Death of Man"	62
Introduction	62
The Postmodern Critique of the Subject: Gadamer, Derrida, and Foucault	65
II The Feminist Critique of Subjects and Objects	73
III Subjects, Objects, and the Social Sciences	94
4 Nature/Culture	105
I Postmodernism and Science	105
II Nature and Culture	111
III A Feminist Science?	119
IV Woman's "Nature"	135
5 The Possibilities of a Postmodern Feminism	152
I The Feminist Case Against Postmodernism	152
II Other Critiques	158

III Derrida: Supplementary Logic 163
 IV Foucault and Political Action: A Feminist Perspective 175
 V Conclusion 188

References 191
 Index 210

Contents

1 Introduction, Postmodernism, and Feminism 1
 2 Postmodernism and Feminism 11
 3 Postmodernism and the Question of Subjectivity 11
 4 Postmodernism and the Question of Language 13
 5 Postmodernism and the Question of Power 17
 6 Derrida 23
 7 Nietzsche and the Question of Power 25
 8 The Feminist Critique of Postmodernism 30
 9 Language and Power 30
 10 The "Man of Reason": The European 33
 11 The "Man of Reason": The American 39
 12 Liberalism and Postmodernism 47
 13 Subject/Object 63
 14 Postmodern Philosophy and the "Death of Man" 63
 15 Introduction 65
 16 The Postmodern Critique of the Subject/Object, Derrida, and Foucault 65
 17 The Feminist Critique of Subject and Object 73
 18 Subject, Object, and the Social Sciences 94
 19 Nature/Culture 105
 20 Postmodernism and Science 105
 21 Nature and Culture 111
 22 A Feminist Science? 119
 23 Women's Nature 135
 24 The Possibilities of a Postmodern Feminism 155
 25 The Feminist Case Against Postmodernism 155
 26 Other Critiques 159