
Contents

Introduction	1
PART ONE Decisions: Getting into Vietnam
1. Patterns, Dilemmas, and Explanations	9
Patterns	9
Dilemmas	11
A Range of Explanations	14
Stereotypes Fail	23
Summary: Three Propositions	24
2. Recurrent Patterns and Dilemmas from Roosevelt to Eisenhower	27
"Hot Potato" Briefings	27
The "Asian Berlin"	30
The Roosevelt Administration	32
The Truman Administration	36
The Eisenhower Administration	50
3. Picking up the Torch: The Kennedy Administration	69
Fastening the Commitment: 1961	72
Buildup and Breakdown	79
Taking the Reins: 1963	86
4. Intervention in Force: The Johnson Administration, I	96
Preparing for Pressure: 1964	97
Crossing the Rubicon: Early 1965	116
Setting the Pattern of Perseverance: Late 1965	130
5. Coming Home to Roost: The Johnson Administration, II	144
On the Tiger's Back: 1966-67	145
Debate, Diplomacy, and Disillusionment	156
Off the Tiger's Back: The Reckoning of 1968	170

PART TWO Goals: The Imperative Not to Lose

6. National Security Goals and Stakes 181
 The Cautious Route to Commitment 182
 Exploring the Security Issue 190
 The Domino Theory 197
7. Domestic Political Stakes 201
 The Two Phases of American Policy on Vietnam 203
 Practical Political Considerations 220
8. The Bureaucracy and the Inner Circle 227
 Career Services and U.S. Stakes in Vietnam 227
 Pressure from the Top and from the Bottom 236
 Concluding Observations about the Imperative Not to Lose 240

PART THREE Means: The Minimum Necessary and the Maximum Feasible

9. Constraints 249
 Four Strategies for Winning 252
 The Fate of the "Winning" Strategies 258
 Building and Breaching "Firebreaks" 267
10. Pressures and the President 272
 Pressures to Do Both More and Less 273
 Presidential Responses 278
 Presidential Management of the Political System 286
 How the System Helped the President 291
 Strategy and Politics: The Presidents' Dilemmas 294

PART FOUR Perceptions: Realism, Hope, and Compromise

11. Optimism, Pessimism, and Credibility 299
 Contradictions and Hedging 300
 The Roots of Internal Estimates 302
 The Cycle of Highs and Lows 310
 Estimates and Escalation 318
12. The Strategy of Perseverance 323
 The Stalemated War 324
 Elements of the Strategy 331

PART FIVE Conclusions

13. The Lessons of Vietnam 347
 Nixon's and Ford's Policies 348
 How the System Worked 352
 Two Schools of Thought on the Lessons of Vietnam 354
 Recommendations 363

CONTENTS

Documentary Appendix 371

Bibliographical Note 375

Index 377

Table

1. Proportion of the Public Favoring Various U.S. Vietnam Policies, 1966, 1967 162

Figures

1. Trends in Support for the War in Vietnam, 1965-71 161

2. Trends in Support for the War in Vietnam, by Partisanship, 1965-71 163