

Contents

List of Contributors	viii
List of Abbreviations and Units of Measure	x
List of References	xi
Map	xii
Preface	1
1. Evolving Relations between State and Markets in the Reform of China's Urban-Industrial Economy Gordon White	7
The Theoretical Basis of Economic Reform	9
The Impact of Economic Reforms	10
Conclusion	24
2. Ideology and Industrialization in China 1949-83 T. Pairault	26
Birth and Survival of a Law	26
The Law of the Priority Growth of Department I and Industrialization in China	30
Appendix 1: Mao Zedong and the Strengthening of the Law of Priority, Growth of Department I	42
Appendix 2: An Example of the Non-Dogmatic Proof of the Law of Priority, Development of Department I	44
Appendix 3: Statistical Aspects of Industrialization	45
3. What Can China Learn from the Hungarian Economic Reforms? Paul Hare	51
Hungary	52
China	55
Lessons	60
Conclusions	66
4. The Modernization of Elites: The evolution of leadership recruitment in the central state administration of the People's Republic of China from 1965 to 1985 Jean-Pierre Cabestan	67

Political, Educational and Socio-Cultural Background of State Council Leaders	70
Mobility and Career of Leaders	76
Appendix: The Three Domains	88
5. Regional Disparities since 1978 P. Aguihier	93
The Evolution of Disparities	93
Causes of the Recent Evolution of Disparities	94
Inadequate Remedies	99
Appendix: (tables)	101
6. Industrial Restructuring and Autonomy of Enterprises in China: Is Reform Possible? Francois Gipouloux	107
The Difficult Reorganization of Industry	107
The Autonomy of Enterprises and its Limits	109
7. The Urban Collective Economy Martin Lockett	118
The Collective Sector in Socialist Economic Theory	119
The Structure of China's Urban Collective Sector	121
The Role of the Collective Sector	124
Conclusions	135
8. A Brief Outline of China's Second Economy Wojtek Zafanolli	138
Economic 'Lures'	139
Economic 'Feudalism'	146
Conclusion: A Dislocated Economy	150
Bibliography	156
Index	164

Tables

2.1 Net Output and Regression Coefficients	29
2.2 Gross Social Output, National Income and Capital-Labour Ratio	31
2.3 Accumulation and the Growth of National Income	33
2.4 ICOR and Industrial Enterprises	34
2.5 Capital Productivity	36
2.6 Pressure on Consumption	37
2.7 Accumulation and Investment in Three Major Branches	45
2.8 Working Population and Net Output of Three Major Branches	46
2.9 National Income and Net Output	47
2.10 Composition of Gross Industrial Output Value by Major Branch of Industry	48
4.1 The Organs and Leaders Studied	69
4.2 Average Age of Leaders of the Central State Administration	71
5.1 Output per head, by province, as a percentage of the national average	101

5.2	Growth rate in 1983 compared to 1979, by province	102
5.3	Sectoral distribution of industrial growth	103
5.4	Budgetary deficits since 1978	103
5.5	Evolution of enterprise income from 1978 to 1982	103
5.6	Price subsidies	104
5.7	Evolution of EEF since 1978	104
5.8	Provincial budgets, 1981	105
5.9	Industrial growth in the state sector and the collective sector	106
5.10	The collective sector in five coastal provinces, 1983	106
6.1	Staff of a Chinese Factory	112
7.1	Forms of Industrial Ownership in Urban China	123
7.2	Employment and Industrial Sectors in China	125

Figures

2.1	Pressure on Consumption	39
6.1	Typical Organization of a Chinese Factory	113