

Contents

Foreword by Nayan Chanda	5
One Nation — or Two?	7
The north rules, but the south runs
Savers vs Spenders	15
Different lifestyles are linked to the climate
Pimps and Panhandlers	19
Ho Chi Minh City looks a lot like old Saigon
Defeated by Victory	22
Military faces crisis in wake of budget cuts
Soldiers of Fortune	30
Making money is easier than making war
Confined to Barracks	33
Army's political influence is slowly eroding
Uncle of the Nation	37
Was Ho Chi Minh a nationalist or communist?
Reaching Out	45
Vietnam seeks to end its isolation
Dynamics of Despair	53
Minorities struggle to escape poverty
Victims of Neglect	60
Minorities are plagued by lack of education
Cultivating Trouble	63
Slash-and-burn farming is alive and well
The Drop-Out Factor	66
Education crisis follows economic reforms
No Jobs for the Boys	72
Many youths face long-term unemployment
No Longer Paper Tigers	76
Press takes bolder stand on corruption
Answered Prayers	81
Religion benefits from new policy of tolerance
Folk Revival	88
Traditional festivals make a comeback
Spiritual Renewal	91
When in doubt, ask a fortune-teller
All in the Family	94
One thing is booming: the population

Even War Heroes Cry	97
Veterans dismayed by daring antiwar novel
Help or Hindrance?	100
Investors find opportunities — and troubles
Obstacle Course	109
Foreigners complain of red-tape and meddling
Wooing Them Home	113
Overseas Vietnamese hesitate to invest
Market Test	120
Ethnic Chinese re-emerge to start businesses
Line of Controversy	126
Power project sends warning to lenders
Red Capitalists	130
Private enterprise flourishes despite hurdles
New Landed Gentry	136
Amid poverty, house prices take off
Second Time Lucky?	141
Foreign oil firms are bullish on Vietnam
Chain Lending	148
Informal credit fills void left by banks
Economic Upturn	152
Free-market reforms help, but perils remain
No Dong, No Deal	160
Corruption spreading rapidly in the north
Just What the Doctor Ordered	164
Private clinics provide superior health care
Anthem of Sorrows	169
Composer's music can again be heard
Showboat to Hanoi	172
Water puppet theatre has a pool for a stage
Adding Up Costs of Dissent	174
Mathematician challenges party ideology
Waiting in the Ruins	177
Ancient capital of Hue may be restored
Singing Between the Lines	181
Love songs aren't just about love
Down the Tubes	184
Will new money destroy quaint old buildings?
Is the Party Over?	188
It could survive by being less Communist
If You Go . . .	197