Contents

List of figures xii
Foreword xiii
Acknowledgements xv

1 Introduction 1
My scam experience 1
Anatomy of the scam experience 2
Contents 3

2 What is fraud and who are the fraudsters? 5
What is fraud? 5
When is fraud a fraud? 6
Who are the fraudsters? 8
Fraud taxonomy 11
Fraud reporting and sanctions 13
Fraud victimisation from the victim's perspective 14

3 Different types of frauds and scams 16
Nigerian or advance fee frauds 16
Identity and synthetic fraud 18
Romance scams 19
Phishing and other social engineering attacks 20
Psychic or clairvoyant scams and cold readings 21
Miracle cures 21
Charity scams and crowdfunding campaigns 22
Lotteries, prize draws, sweepstakes and giveaways 23
Investment or business opportunities and job scams 23
Sextortion and extortion scams 24
Mortgage fraud 26
Food fraud 27
Further reading 28

4 Deception and communication 29
The process of communication 29
Deceptive communication 33
View of deception through cultural and societal conventions 35
Detecting deception 36
How fraudsters deceive 38
Deception and its role in fraud victimisation 40
Further reading 42

5 How we think and make decisions and why this matters in fraud situations 43
System 1 and System 2 43
Elaboration Likelihood Model (ELM) of persuasion 45
Decision-making styles 46
Cognitive biases 47
Further reading 53

6 Persuasion and scamming techniques 55
Evoking visceral influence 55
Liking and similarity 56
Credibility and legitimacy 57
Evoking social norms 58
Authority 58
Commitment and consistency 59
Scarcity and urgency 59
Social proof and social influence 61
Dishonesty and distraction 61
Priming 62
Altercasting 64
Grooming 65
Further reading 66

7 Human factors in fraud 67
Impulsivity and self-control 68
Compliance and obedience to authority 69
Risk assessment and sensation seeking 70
Flattery and intimidation 71
Information processing and need for cognition 71
Trust and gullibility 72
Vigilance, delayed decisions, scam awareness and background knowledge 74
Demographics and circumstances 76
Behaviours and beliefs 78
Human factors and information security 79
Further reading 81

8 Theories and models that could explain why we fall victim to fraud and scams 82
Errors in judgment 82
The Model of Scamming Vulnerability 83
Models of Gullible and Foolish Action 84
Phishing susceptibility framework 85
Suspicion, Cognition and Automacity Model of phishing susceptibility 87
The Model of Fraud Susceptibility 88

9 Learning to spot scams, fraud and persuasive communication 91
Scam situations and factors that contribute to compliance 91
Spotting scam techniques in phishing correspondence 105

10 SCAMS checklist: advice for reflection and protection 120
Scrutinise the correspondence 121
Consider scam techniques 124
Assess emotional state 125
Moderate the response 127
Share your experience with others 129

References 132
Index 151