

CONTENTS

| | |
|---------------------------------|------|
| List of Illustrations | xi |
| Abbreviations | xiii |
| Preface | xv |
| Introduction | 1 |
| Methods, Aims and Sources | 13 |
| Some Specific Questions | 22 |

CHAPTER ONE

| | |
|--|-----|
| 1. Self and Social Background | 35 |
| 2. Body-Person from Internal and External Perspectives | 39 |
| 2.a. Self and personality | 40 |
| 2.b. Personality, temperament and complexion | 50 |
| 2.b.1. Complexion and physical aspect | 55 |
| 2.b.1a. Male and female beauty | 71 |
| 2.b.2. Temperament | 85 |
| 2.b.3. Personality and social identity | 91 |
| 2.b.4. Some generic terms concerning character, bearing and temperament | 98 |
| 2.c. Values | 105 |
| 2.d. The subjectivity of judgements and prejudices | 112 |

CHAPTER TWO

| | |
|---|-----|
| 1. The Theoretical Problems on the Evaluation of Personality and its Morality in Neo-Confucian Thought | 121 |
| 1.a. Early thinkers | 121 |
| 1.b. Zhu Xi | 126 |
| 1.c. The debate in Ming and Qing dynasties | 131 |
| 1.c.1. Wang Tingxiang and Wu Tinghan | 131 |
| 1.c.2. Wang Yangming | 133 |
| 1.c.3. Zhang Ruoshui, Fu Shan and Lü Kun | 137 |
| 1.c.4. Liu Zongzhou, Zhu Zhiyu and Chen Que | 139 |
| 1.c.5. Tang Zhen, Huang Zongxi and Luo Qinshun | 142 |
| 1.c.6. Wang Fuzhi | 143 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| 1.c.7. Yan Yuan | 147 |
| 1.c.8. Dai Zhen and Jiao Xun | 150 |
| 1.c.9. Cao Xueqin, and some conclusive remarks | 152 |
| 2. The "Second Nature" and the Transformation of Nature and Habits | 155 |

CHAPTER THREE

| | |
|---|-----|
| Prototypes and Stereotypes | 167 |
| 1.a. Political and intellectual élite | 172 |
| 1.b. Heroes and rebels, healers of bodies and souls, and mean people | 183 |
| 1.c. The influence of environment | 190 |
| 1.c.1. Images of barbarians as "others". The Northwestern nomadic peoples | 195 |
| 1.d. The "last bad ruler" but not so bad. The crisis of a stereotype in the case of the last Ming Emperor | 212 |
| 1.e. Gender and age | 219 |

CHAPTER FOUR

| | |
|--|-----|
| Reconstructing Personality Traits in Late Imperial China: Individual Dispositions | 251 |
| 1. Specific Traits of Personality | 253 |
| 1.1. Mental abilities: brightness, acuteness and talent | 260 |
| 1.2. Agreeableness and sociability: Skills and positive feedback in social relations | 271 |
| 1.3. Ambition and modesty | 279 |
| 1.4. Fear and weakness versus courage, impudence and temerity | 282 |
| 1.5. Arrogance, pride, high opinion of self and stubbornness | 289 |
| 1.6. Good and bad qualities | 293 |
| 1.6.a. Loyalty, honesty and righteousness, sincerity, simplicity and naïvety | 296 |
| 1.6.b. Some bad qualities: lacking moral sensibility and other | 306 |
| 1.6.c. Against bona fides: False and cunning | 310 |
| 1.6.d. Aggressiveness and violence | 313 |
| 1.6.e. Other asocial tendencies, petulance, laziness | 318 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 2. Weakness in Mental Abilities and Discrepancy from Common Sense: Insanity or Moral Inadequacy | 323 |
| 2.1. Variations around 'foolishness' | 323 |
| 2.1.a. Yú 愚 | 327 |
| 2.1.b. Chī 癡, kuáng 狂, pǐ 癖, fēng 瘋 and diān 顛 | 331 |
| 2.1.c. Dāi 呆 | 340 |
| 2.1.d. Hútu 糊塗/鶻突 | 342 |
| 2.1.e. Hān 憨 and Shǎ 傻 | 345 |
| 2.1.f. Chǔn 蠢, zhuō 拙, dùn 鈍, bèn 笨/夯, and other terms for 'dull' and 'obtuse' 昏耗 | 346 |
| 2.2. Insanity or sign of distinction? | 352 |
| 2.3. Unconventional, crazy and strange personalities | 362 |
| 2.4. Another unconventional hero, in orthodox style | 376 |
| 3. Great Vices and Forbidden Obsessions | 381 |
| 3.a. 色 Lust | 394 |
| 3.b. 財 Greed | 399 |
| 3.c. 氣 Impulsiveness, vehemence and hot-temper | 402 |
| 3.d. 酒 Addiction to wine | 403 |
| Conclusions | 407 |

APPENDIX

| | |
|--|-----|
| 1. The Fuzzy Borders of the 'Private' | 441 |
| 2. "Spontaneity", Between "Nature" and "Society" | 449 |
| 3. Innateness | 453 |
| 4. "Inner" and "Outer" | 456 |
| 5. "Autonomous" or "Heteronomous" Self | 464 |
| 6. "Ostentation". The Priority of the "True-self" or of the "Common Language of Men" | 469 |
| Bibliography | 477 |
| Index | 513 |