

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	xi
Preface	xiii
INTRODUCTION	1
PART I ORTHODOX DEVELOPMENT THINKING	5
1 Capital Accumulation and Industrialisation	9
The Rostowian View of Growth, Industrialisation, and Aid	10
The Two-Gap Model	13
‘Trickle-down’: Savings, Accumulation and Income Distribution	15
The Focus on Inter-industry Relationships	16
Big Push	16
Balanced Growth	17
Unbalanced Growth and Linkage Effects	20
Growth Poles	23
Industrialisation Issues since the 1960s	24
Foreign Direct Investment and Multinational Corporations	25
ISI vs. EOI	27
Indigenous Technological Capability	28
Regional Integration	29
Notes and References	30
2 Dualism and Agriculture-centred Development	37
Dualism: Static and Dynamic Models	37
The Lewis model	38
Ranis and Fei	40
The Case for Institutional Change: Redistributive Land Reform	44
The evidence on land reform	47
The Modernisation of Agriculture	48
The Green Revolution	50
The ‘Second Green Revolution’ and the Revival of Agriculture	54
Notes and References	57

3	Open-economy Development and the Neoclassical Resurgence	67
	The Neoclassical Critique of ISI	67
	Theoretical Foundations of the Neoclassical Approach	69
	Adaptations of the Neoclassical Model:	73
	Growth Theory and Cost-Benefit Analysis
	Project Appraisal	74
	The 'cost-benefit' approach	75
	Empirical Studies	77
	The Policy Impact of the Neoclassical Resurgence	82
	The 'new export pessimism'	85
	The 'New' Trade Theory and Strategic Trade Policy	86
	Notes and References	88
4	Reformist Development Thinking	97
	The Reformist Response to Poverty: Employment, Redistribution with Growth, and Basic Needs	99
	The Employment Focus at ILO: The World Employment Programme	100
	The World Bank and Redistribution with Growth	102
	The Basic-Needs Strategy	104
	The NIEO and the International Dimension of Reformism	110
	Empirical Studies
	Growth and Inequality	112
	The measurement of poverty	114
	Alternative development indicators	114
	Other Criticisms of the Reformist Approach	115
	The Impact of Reformist Thinking	121
	Notes and References	124
PART II	HETERODOX DEVELOPMENT THINKING	133
5	Structuralism and Dependency	137
	Structuralism: The Early Period	137
	The Centre-Periphery Paradigm	139
	Industrial Programming and Import Protection	142
	The Orthodox Critique	144
	Other ECLA Policy Proposals	146
	The Structuralist-Monetarist Debate on Inflation	147

	ECLA and the Stagnationist Views of the 1960s	150
	The foreign-exchange bottleneck	150
	Internal obstacles	151
	ECLA's Policy Shifts in the 1960s	153
	The Dependency School	156
	Furtado and Sunkel	157
	Frank and the Development-of-Underdevelopment	161
	Current
	Cardoso and Faletto	165
	The Critique of Dependency	167
	Marxist Critique	168
	Non-Marxist Critique	169
	Dependency Thinking outside Latin America	170
	Unequal Exchange	170
	African Dependency Thinking	172
	Samir Amin	172
	The Tanzanian Experience	175
	The Kenyan Debate	177
	Lewis, 'Industrialisation by Invitation' and the Heritage of Small Plantation Economies: the Jamaican Experience	179
	Dependency in Asia	181
	The Aftermath of Dependency Thinking in Latin America	182
	Notes and References	186
6	Marxism	196
	Historical Foundations:	198
	Marx	198
	Lenin on the Development of Capitalism in Russia	201
	Imperialism: the Classical View	202
	Rosa Luxemburg: Merchant Capital	202
	Lenin: Imperialism and 'Monopoly' Capitalism	203
	The First Reversal of Uneven Development: the Underdevelopment School	205
	Kuusinen: The 'Feudal-Imperialist' Alliance	205
	The Postwar Debates:	206
	Baran and Sweezy: The Extraction of Surplus	206
	The Second Reversal of Uneven Development	209
	Agrarian Political Economy and the 'Modes of Production' Controversy	213

The State	218
The Transition to Socialism	221
Monopoly Capital in Underdeveloped Economies: Third Reversal of Uneven Development?	223
Notes and References	226
Bibliography	236
Index	265