

Contents

Preface to the second, fully revised edition	page ix
1 The Basics of the Convention System	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Main Principles Underlying the Convention: Effectiveness and Subsidiarity	4
1.3 The Double Role of the European Court of Human Rights	10
1.4 The Structure of Convention Rights Review	13
1.5 Typology of Convention Rights from a Perspective of Possibilities for Justification	21
2 The Supervisory Mechanism and the Role of the Court	35
2.1 Introduction	35
2.2 Development of the Supervisory System	36
2.3 The European Court of Human Rights	41
2.4 Admissibility Requirements	43
2.5 Main Procedural Steps regarding Individual Applications	65
2.6 Decisions, Judgments and Advisory Opinions	68
2.7 Conclusion	74
3 The Court's Overall Argumentative Approach – Mediating Between the Abstract and the Concrete	77
3.1 Introduction	77
3.2 Object of Review – Legislation and/or Individual Decisions	78
3.3 Individual Redress or General Convention Interpretation?	88
3.4 The Role of Precedent in the Court's Case Law	90
3.5 Case-based Review, Incrementalism and the Search for a Reflective Equilibrium	94
3.6 Legal Effect of the Court's Interpretations; ' Res Interpretata '	97
4 Principles Governing the Interpretation and Application of Convention Rights	100
4.1 Introduction	100
4.2 The ECHR and the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties	101

4.3	Evolutionary Interpretation and the Convention as a 'Living Instrument'	106
4.4	Meta-Teleological Interpretation and the Underlying Values of the Convention	116
4.5	Autonomous Interpretation	126
5	Methods of Convention Interpretation	140
5.1	Introduction	140
5.2	Textual Interpretation	141
5.3	Interpretation in Light of the Travaux Préparatoires	146
5.4	Harmonising Interpretation	150
5.5	Common Ground or Consensus Interpretation	158
6	Positive and Negative Obligations	174
6.1	Introduction	174
6.2	Definition of Positive Obligations	176
6.3	Types of Positive Obligations	191
6.4	The Relation between Negative and Positive Obligations	206
7	Vertical and Horizontal Effect	212
7.1	Introduction	212
7.2	Direct Responsibility of the State for Interferences with Convention Rights	214
7.3	Indirect Horizontal Effect	221
8	The Margin of Appreciation Doctrine	241
8.1	Introduction	241
8.2	The Development, Function and Effects of the Margin of Appreciation Doctrine	244
8.3	Applicability of the Margin of Appreciation Doctrine	250
8.4	Determining the Scope of the Margin of Appreciation	255
8.5	Continued Relevance of the Margin of Appreciation Doctrine?	283
9	Justification of Restrictions I – Lawfulness	286
9.1	Introduction	286
9.2	Autonomous and Substantive Interpretation	287
9.3	A Basis in Domestic Law	290
9.4	Accessibility	294
9.5	Foreseeability	296
9.6	Absence of Arbitrariness	307
9.7	Procedural Safeguards	309

10	Justification of Restrictions II – Legitimate Aim	316
10.1	Exhaustive Lists of Legitimate Aims and Their Importance	316
10.2	Application and Interpretation of the Legitimate Aim Requirement	318
10.3	Discrepancy Between Stated and Real Aims	323
10.4	Levels of Generality, Plurality of Aims and Article 18 ECHR	325
10.5	Interconnectedness of Legitimate Aim and Proportionality	330
11	Justification of Restrictions III – Necessity, Proportionality and Fair Balance	332
11.1	Formulas, Tests and Standards	332
11.2	Necessity, a Pressing Social Need and the Least Restrictive Means Test	336
11.3	The Relevant and Sufficient Test	346
11.4	Fair Balance, Proportionality and Related Tests	349
11.5	Procedural Review	371
	Index	377