

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	1
Jeff Kyong-McClain, Russell Meeuf, and Jing Jing Chang
Part I. Politics and Dissent in Global Contexts
1. Seeing (through) the Struggle Sessions: Cinema, Recycling, and Transnational Circulation	19
Belinda Q. He
2. Screening Politics in Hong Kong	41
Joseph Tse-Hei Lee
3. "All of Us Are Part of the Monster": Toxic Sublimity and Ethical Reflexivity in Zhao Liang's Behemoth	58
Man-Fung Yip
Part II. Audiences and Reception in Transnational Contexts
4. From Gone with the Wind to The Spring River Flows East : Melodrama and Historical Imagination in Postwar Chinese Cinema	79
Kenny Kwok Kwan Ng
5. Spatial Perception: The Aesthetics of Yijing in Transnational Kung Fu Films	97
Xi W. Liu
6. Global Network, Ecocinema, and Chinese Contexts: Wolf Totem as a Successful Model of Transnational Coproduction	113
Wendy Su
Part III. Globalization and Chinese Identities
7. The Sound of Chinese Urban Cinema: Multilingualism and the Re-globalization of Shanghai in the 1990s	131
Lin Feng

8.	Sound, Allusion, and the “Wandering Songstress” in Royston Tan’s Films	152
	Alison M. Groppe
9.	Implicit Sexuality: The Representation of the Femme Fatale Figure in Black Coal, Thin Ice	169
	Yushi Hou
Part IV. Film Markets and Financial Reform
10.	The China Film Co., Ltd. and the Stock Market: Financialization with Chinese Characteristics	185
	Shiying Liu
11.	Big Shot’s Funeral : Sino-Foreign Collaboration and Industrial Commercialization	204
	Qi Ai
12.	Sticks, Not Carrots: The Discourse of Soft Power in Popular Chinese Cinema	223
	Katherine Chu
	Epilogue	242
	Po-Shek Fu and Stanley Rosen
	List of Contributors	249
	Index	253