

Contents

About the author	v
Series editors' preface	vi
Preface	viii
Part 1: Setting the stage for theorising
one Introduction	3
Ethnicity: an elusive term and a starting point	5
Engaging in a theorising exercise: the why and how of it	7
The book's raison d'être : wanting to expand our imagination	11
Timing: why now?	12
The scientific communities that this book addresses	14
Structure of the book: the what and the why	18
two Population ageing and international migration	23
Population ageing: demography and discourse	24
Globalisation and the study of culture	27
Transnationalism: a specific aspect of globalisation	32
Globalisation and the study of migration, 'periphery' and inequality	34
Globalisation: the implications for the intersection of ethnicity and old age	39
Concluding remarks	48
three Ethnicity and race: from essentialism to constructionism	51
Ethnicity and race: seemingly straightforward yet elusive constructs	53
Essentialist/primordialist perspective on ethnicity and race	61
Structuralist/circumstantialist perspective on ethnicity and race	65
Social constructionist perspective on ethnicity and race	70
Concluding remarks	74

Part 2: Theorising via a scoping review: what we know and need to find out

four	Literature on health inequalities	81
	Main trends observed	84
	Concluding remarks	98
five	Literature on health and social care	103
	Main trends observed	105
	Concluding remarks	119
six	Literature on social relations and caregiving	123
	Main trends observed	125
	Concluding remarks	140
seven	A new agenda: where we are at and need to head for	145
	Obstacles posed by the lack of an explicit research agenda	147
	Obstacles posed by narrow samples, perspectives and reference categories	148
	Obstacles posed by structure- and culture-obliviousness	151
	Obstacles posed by reliance on a small number of methodological approaches	154
	Obstacles posed by our choice of dissemination outlets	157
	Obstacles posed by the stagnation in understandings of ethnicity and race	159
	Obstacles posed by lack of analytic clarity	161
	Unleashing our imagination	166
	References	171
	Appendix: how the scoping review was conducted	203
	Selecting the databases used to identify the peer-reviewed articles	203
	Sampling criteria: deciding which articles to include	206
	Analysing the literature: sorting out and coding	208
	Deciding which references to allude to explicitly	211
	Index	213