

9 Introduction and Acknowledgments

15 The Early Years

The background and education of Jacques Groag
World War I and professional beginnings

29 The First Projects

Collaboration on the Wittgenstein House, 1926–1929
The Moller Villa, 1927–1928
The first independent project: The Groag Villa in Olmütz/Olomouc, 1927–1928
Vienna's artistic environment

61 The Artistic Breakthrough

Projects in Vienna and Moravia – Jacques Groag's first success as an interior architect Getting to know Hilde Blumberger
The duplex at the Vienna Werkbundsiedlung, 1931–1932
Furniture and interiors
The Gustav Stern House in Perchtoldsdorf, 1932–1933
The Paula and Hans Briess Villa in Olmütz, 1933

113 Projects in the Late 1930s

Ing. Rudolf Seidler Villa in Olmütz, 1935
Conversion and furnishings of the Paula Wessely Villa in Vienna-Grinzing, 1935
Otto Eisler country house in Ostravice, 1935–1939
The late 1930s – projects in Moravia-Ostrau and Brno Displacement and intermezzo in Prague, 1938–1939

145 Emigration and a New Beginning in England

Escape and a difficult start

The end of the war – an urban planning project for Soho, 1945

Jacqueline Groag establishes herself as a textile designer

The emigrants in England – a problematic situation

171 The Groags After the War

Utility Furniture and Exhibition Design

The utility furniture program – a new arena

The first postwar exhibitions – Modern Homes and Britain Can Make It, 1946

Additional exhibitions – Ideal Home, 1949 and British Industries Fair, 1950

The end of the postwar era – The Festival of Britain, 1951

The 1950s – Jacques Groag's interiors, and painting as therapy

The late work of Jacqueline Groag

227 Conclusion

231 Afterword by Marc Aronson

235 Notes

247 Jacques Groag – Catalog of Works

Architecture, interior design and furniture design
Painting and graphic art

255 Jacqueline Groag – Catalog of Works, Exhibitions and Awards

Textiles, wallpapers, and floor coverings
Graphic design
Industrial design
Other companies
Periodicals
Exhibitions and awards

259 Bibliography

Monographs, catalogs and articles
Periodicals
Unpublished typescripts and manuscripts
Archives and private sources
Professional articles and publications

265 Index