

Contents

	Page
Preface	v
Acknowledgements	vi
1 Coursebooks and Language Learning	1
1 Teachers and coursebooks
2 Good courses and bad courses
3 What coursebooks say about themselves
4 Some principles for materials evaluation
4.1 Relate the teaching materials to your aims and objectives
4.2 Be aware of what language is for
4.3 Keep your students' learning needs in mind
4.4 Consider the relationship between the language, the learning process and the learner
5 The principles in practice
Conclusion
Exercises and activities
2 The Language Content	15
1 Form and function
2 Aspects of language form
3 Appropriateness
4 Varieties
5 Language skills
Summary
Exercises and activities
3 The Selection and Grading of Language Items	22
1 Functional syllabuses and structural syllabuses
2 Subject-centred approach and student-centred approach
3 Grading and recycling
4 Implications for the evaluation of language teaching materials
4.1 Functional and structural syllabuses in practice
4.2 Case study: two courses compared
Summary
Exercises and activities
4 Presentation and Practice of New Language Items	31
1 The influence of theories of learning
1.1 Behaviourist and cognitive views
1.2 Inductive and deductive language learning
2 Presentation and practice of grammar items
2.1 Presentation of new structures
2.2 Practice activities for new structures
3 Presentation and practice of lexis
4 Phonology
Summary
Exercises and activities
5 Developing Language Skills and Communicative Abilities	43
1 Free production of spoken English
2 Materials for reading, listening and writing
2.1 Reading
2.2 Listening
2.3 Writing
3 Integrated skills and communicative abilities
Summary
Exercises and activities

6 Supporting Materials	50
1 Visual material, tapes and other aids for the teacher
1.1 Visual material
1.2 Audio material
1.3 Teachers' books
1.4 Vocabulary lists and indexes
2 Materials for testing
3 Other considerations
3.1 Teacher input
3.2 Equipment
3.3 Subject matter
3.4 Overall impression
Summary
Exercises and activities
7 Motivation and the Learner	59
1 Psychological factors
1.1 Shorter-term objectives
1.2 Appealing materials
1.3 Whole-person approach
1.4 Realism
2 Social and cultural factors
2.1 Geographical setting
2.2 Age range and class
2.3 Advantages of culture-specific coursebooks
2.4 Limitations of culture-specific coursebooks
2.5 Teaching cultural background with the language
2.6 English as a second language
2.7 Anthropological aspects of language
Summary
Exercises and activities
8 Overall Evaluation	64
Exercises and activities
9 Adaptation and Innovation: Making the materials meet your requirements	65
1 Inspiration and creativity
2 Some practical examples
2.1 Making dialogues communicative
2.2 Making learning activities relevant and purposeful
2.3 Meeting your learners' needs
2.4 Using real, authentic language
Exercises and activities
10 Checklist of Evaluation Criteria	74
A Glossary of Basic EFL Terms	80
Bibliography	103
Index	105