

Contents

| | |
|--|-----|
| Introduction: Television and the Novel | 1 |
| 1. Television and Postmodernism | 25 |
| 2. The Twilight Zone and American Society in the Long 1950s: Between the Modern and the Postmodern | 49 |
| 3. The Prisoner : The Modern, the Postmodern, and French Poststructuralism in the 1960s | 71 |
| 4. Strange Reaganism: Ludic Postmodernism as Cold War Allegory in Twin Peaks | 97 |
| 5. It's the Libidinal Economy, Stupid: The X-Files and the Politics of Postmodern Desire | 121 |
| Conclusion: Television, Capitalism, and Postmodernism | 151 |
| Notes | 163 |
| Works Cited | 173 |
| Index | 183 |