

Contents

List of contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xi

Introduction—From the Shadows to Our Living Rooms: Serial Killers on Popular TV after 9/11	1
BRETT A.B. ROBINSON

SECTION I

A Dark Empathy: Identification with Killer Characters	17
--	-----------

1 When the Monsters Are Real (and They Understand Us): The Horror of Hannibal	19
ANDREW M. WINTERS

2 Born in Blood: 9/11, Trauma, Selfhood, and Dexter	35
BRETT A.B. ROBINSON

3 “Too Much History, Too Much Remembering”: National Trauma and Individual Trauma in The Fall	51
PHILIP L. SIMPSON

4 From Villains to Clowns: Adapting Serial Killers to Internet Memes	65
DEVALEENA KUNDU

SECTION II

Death and Sex: Gendered Bodies in Serial Killer Narratives 83

- 5 “He is a Murderer”: You, Fandom, and the Romanticized Male Killer 85

JAKE PITRE

- 6 The Killing Characters of Penny Dreadful 101

STEPHANIE GREEN

- 7 The Subversive Powers of Killing Eve 119

PAUL EMMETT

- 8 Better the Devil You Know: Nostalgia for the Captured Killer in Netflix’s Conversations with a Killer: The Ted Bundy Tapes 135

STELLA GAYNOR

SECTION III

Unknown Killers: The Ambiguity of Post-9/11 Culture 153

- 9 Dropping the Mask of Sanity: How Mindhunter Deconstructs the Profiling Procedural 155

ASHLEY R. SMITH

- 10 True Detective and the Post-Serial Killer Text 177

RODNEY TAVEIRA

- 11 Unthinkable Crimes: Representation, Knowledge, Mindhunter 198

DAN MCFADDEN

- Index* 216