

Contents

KNIHOVNA UP

Značka:

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	ix
List of Contributors	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
 Introduction: Language Diversity in the Sinophone World	 1
HENNING KLÖTER AND MÅRTEN SÖDERBLOM SAARELA
 PART I
Historical Trajectories	11
 1 What Was Standard Chinese in the Nineteenth Century?
Divergent Views in the Times of Transition	13
RICHARD VANNESS SIMMONS
 2 Manchu, Mandarin, and the Politicization of Spoken
Language in Qing China	39
MÅRTEN SÖDERBLOM SAARELA
 3 Romanizing Southern Mǐn: Missionaries and the Promotion of
Written Chinese Vernaculars	60
DON SNOW
 4 Interactions across Englishes in Mainland China, Hong Kong,
Macao, and Singapore	80
CHRISTIANE MEIERKORD
 PART II
Language Planning	99
 5 One Legacy, Two Legislations: Language Policies on the Two

6	Language Policy and Practice in Taiwan in the Early Twenty-First Century	122
	SU-CHIAO CHEN
7	A Tale of Two Special Administrative Regions: The State of Multilingualism in Hong Kong and Macao	142
	DAVID C.S. LI AND CHOI-LAN TONG
8	One People, One Nation, One Singapore: Language Policy and Shifting Identities among Chinese Singaporeans	164
	YENG SENG GOH AND YEOW WAH FONG
PART III
	Multilingual Practices	183
9	Speakers of “Mother Tongues” in Multilingual China: Complex Linguistic Repertoires and Identity Construction	185
	SIHUA LIANG
10	Multilingualism and Language Policy in Singapore	205
	PETER SIEMUND AND LIJUN LI
11	The Discourses of lào yīngwén: Resistance to and Subversion of the Normative Status of English in Taiwan	229
	HSI-YAO SU
12	Conventionalized Code-Switching in Taiwan: English Insertions in Taiwan Mandarin	250
	JULIA WASSERFALL
13	Ubiquitous but Unplanned: The Utterance-Final Particle ê in Taiwan Mandarin	274
	CHIN-HUI LIN
14	Diverse Language, Diverse Grammars: On Quirky Phenomena in Mandarin	291
	JEROEN WIEDENHOF
	Index	307