

Contents

List of illustrations	vi
Preface	ix
Part One Towards a civil society
1 The Making of Modern Hungary	3
2 Industrial Development in the Eyes of Opposition Reformers of the 1840s	19
3 The Emergence of Bourgeois Thought: Arguments in Favour of the Polish Uprising at the Hungarian Diet of 1832–6	44
4 Count Széchenyi and the Conflicts of Modernity	60
5 Liberalism, 1830–67: Reformer Roles and Social Awareness	71
6 Politics and National Minorities, 1848–9	92
Part Two The emergence of civil society at the crossroads of liberalism and conservatism
7 Mamelukes and Zoltans: Elected Representatives under the Dual Monarchy	109
8 The Two Houses of Parliament: History of a Changing Atmosphere	145
9 Liberalism, Conservatism and Political Legitimacy under the Dual Monarchy	169
10 Liberals, Anti-Semites and Jews at the Birth of Modern Hungary	182
Part Three National consciousness and the making of cults
11 The Millennium Monument	203
12 A Hungarian Cult: Queen Elisabeth of Bavaria	223
13 March the Fifteenth	238
Biographical index	251