

CONTENTS

Abbreviations ix

Acknowledgments xi

- 1 Introduction 1
  - The challenges of development 1
  - Historiographical and conceptual considerations 4
  - Chapter outline 12
- 2 Development in History: “Everyman’s Road to Utopia?” 15
  - Defining and conceptualizing development 15
  - Debates about global inequalities, economic growth, and industrialization 18
  - Conclusion 22
- 3 Forerunners of Development 23
  - Poverty, humanitarianism, and the civilizing mission 23
  - Perspectives on agriculture and rural life 29
  - Colonial development 34
  - Modernization projects 43
  - Conclusion 47
- 4 The Emergence of Development in the Mid-Twentieth Century 49
  - Late colonial development 49
  - American views on global problems 55
  - New international organizations 61
  - The establishment of development studies 74
  - Conclusion 77

5 Development in the Context of Decolonization and the Cold War 79

Postcolonial states and their development goals 79

Development models 84

The many faces of international development assistance 86

Relations between recipients and providers of aid 97

Conclusion 100

6 Development Approaches and Practices in the Postwar Period 103

Community development 103

Agricultural development 109

Education for development 115

Public health and birth control 120

Conclusion 125

7 Challenges to Development 127

Toward a new international economic order 127

Intellectual and political challenges to development 133

New development approaches 137

Conclusion 141

8 The Disintegration of Development 143

Rights, markets, and sustainability 143

Poverty eradication, dead aid, and degrowth 148

Conclusion 150

9 Conclusion and Outlook 153

Notes 159

Bibliography 202

Index 233