

Contents

Preface	vii
Acknowledgements	xi
Part 1 Research methods and ethics	1
1 Psychology, science and research	3
2 Measuring people – variables, samples and the qualitative critique	35
3 Experiments and experimental designs in psychology	69
4 Validity in psychological research	101
5 Quasi-experiments and non-experiments	135
6 Observational methods – watching and being with people	155
7 Interview methods – asking people direct questions	187
8 Psychological tests and measurement scales	217
9 Comparison studies – cross-sectional, longitudinal and cross-cultural studies	255
10 Qualitative approaches in psychology	275
11 Ethical issues in psychological research	309
Part 2 Analysing data and writing reports	333
12 Analysing qualitative data	335
13 Statistics – organising the data	375
14 Graphical representation of data	417
15 Frequencies and distributions	437
16 Significance testing – was it a real effect?	457
17 Testing for differences between two samples	489
18 Tests for categorical variables and frequency tables	539
19 Correlation	571
20 Regression methods	609
21 Factor analysis	633
22 Multi-level analysis – differences between more than two conditions (ANOVA)	653

23	Multi-factorial ANOVA designs	68
24	ANOVA for repeated measures designs	70
25	Choosing a significance test for your data	72
26	Planning your practical and writing up your report	74
	Appendix	79
	References	81
	Index	84