

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	I

THE SPIRIT OF CONQUEST AND USURPATION AND THEIR RELATION TO EUROPEAN CIVILIZATION

Bibliographical note	44
Preface to the first edition	45
Preface to the third edition	46
Foreword to the fourth edition	48

Part I · The spirit of conquest

1 The virtues compatible with war at given stages of social development	51
2 The character of modern nations in relation to war	52
3 The spirit of conquest in the present condition of Europe	55
4 Of a military race acting on self-interest alone	56
5 A further reason for the deterioration of the military class within the system of conquest	59
6 The influence of this military spirit upon the internal condition of nations	60
7 A further drawback of the formation of this military spirit	62

Contents

8	The effect of a conquering government upon the mass of the nation	63
9	Means of coercion necessary to supplement the efficacy of falsehood	66
10	Further drawbacks of the system of warfare for enlightenment and the educated class	68
11	The point of view from which a conquering nation today would regard its own successes	69
12	Effect of these successes upon the conquered peoples	71
13	On uniformity	73
14	The inevitable end to the successes of a conquering nation	79
15	Results of the system of warfare in the present age	81

Part II · Usurpation

1	The specific aim of the comparison between usurpation and monarchy	85
2	Differences between usurpation and monarchy	87
3	One respect in which usurpation is more hateful than absolute despotism	95
4	Usurpation cannot survive in this period of our civilization	97
5	Can usurpation not be maintained by force?	101
6	The kind of liberty offered to men at the end of the last century	102
7	The modern imitators of the republics of antiquity	105
8	The means employed to give to the moderns the liberty of the ancients	110
9	Does the aversion of the moderns for this pretended liberty imply that they love despotism?	114
10	A sophism in favour of arbitrary power exercised by one man	115
11	The effects of arbitrary power upon the different aspects of human existence	118
12	The effects of arbitrary power upon intellectual progress	120
13	Religion under arbitrary power	127
14	Men's inability to resign themselves voluntarily to arbitrary power in any form	129
15	Despotism as a means of preserving usurpation	132
16	The effect of illegal and despotic measures on regular governments themselves	134

17	Implications of the preceding considerations in relation to despotism	138
18	Causes which make despotism particularly impossible at this age of our civilization	140
19	As usurpation cannot be maintained through despotism, since in our days despotism itself cannot last, usurpation has no chance of enduring	142

*Additions to *The spirit of conquest and usurpation

CHAPTERS ADDED TO THE FOURTH EDITION:

1	On innovation, reform and the uniformity and stability of institutions	149
2	Further reflections on usurpation	157

On usurpation

5	Answer to an objection which could be drawn from the example of William III	165
---	---	-----

PRINCIPLES OF POLITICS APPLICABLE TO ALL REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENTS

Bibliographical note	170
Foreword	171
1	On the sovereignty of the people	175
2	The nature of royal power in a constitutional monarchy	183
3	On the right to dissolve representative assemblies	194
4	On a hereditary assembly and on the importance of not limiting the number of its members	198
5	On the election of representative assemblies	201
6	On the conditions of property	213
7	On discussion in the representative assemblies	221
8	On the right to initiate legislation	225
9	On the responsibility of ministers	227
10	On the declaration that ministers are unworthy of public trust	242
11	On the responsibility of subordinates	244
12	On municipal power, local authorities and a new kind of federalism	251

Contents

13	On the right to declare war and make peace	255
14	On the organization of armed forces in a constitutional state	257
15	On the inviolability of property	261
16	On the liberty of the press	272
17	On religious liberty	274
18	On the liberty of the individual	289
19	On judicial guarantees	295
20	Final considerations	302

THE LIBERTY OF THE ANCIENTS

COMPARED WITH THAT OF THE MODERNS

Bibliographical note	308
----------------------	-----

Bibliography	329
--------------	-----

Index	344
-------	-----