

List of figures	xiii
List of tables and diagrams	xiv
Author profiles	xv
Acknowledgements	xvii
Introduction: Genealogy of the concept of the medium and literary studies Richard Müller	1
1. Integrating literary and media study: In search of principles	1
Starting from an absence	1
Defining the subject	3
Genealogy of the concept and genealogy as a method	5
Constitutive questions and issues	9
2. The emerging contours of the medium: Outline	10
<hr/>
1 The 'medium': Concept and history Tomáš Chudý	19
1. Conceptual (pre-)history of the medium	19
Delimiting the 'medium': Functional perspective	19
Evidence and records of concept and function	22
A functional definition of media in light of its conceptual (pre-)history	29
2. Aspects of media evolution	31
3. The medium as an environment and as a means/tool – a unified concept?	37
2 Reflections of mediality in Prague School thinking Richard Müller and Pavel Šidák	45
1. Defining the problem	45
2. Structuralism's turn to medial thinking under the influence of film	48
3. How the theorization of architecture transforms the aesthetic function into a 'mediating' function	54

4. Problems of semiosis in connection with theatre	59
The unifying principle of meaning and unintentionality in the theatre	60
5. Conclusions	63

3	The media philosophy of Walter Benjamin Martin Ritter	69
	1. Concept of the medium	70
	2. The age of the masses	74
	3. The problem of mastering emancipated technology	76
	4. Media of the world's self-givenness	77
	5. Benjamin's media thinking	79
4	'Let the ghosts come back': Modern spectrology and its media Josef Vojvodík	83
	1. Film: The double 'image-ghost of man'	86
	2. Technics as 'open form'	87
	3. Humanity as a 'medial event'	88
	4. 'Place of image'	90
	5. 'Being a skull': Cube, crystal and black box	92
	6. Negativity, indeterminacy, ambiguity: The modalities of negative anthropology	94
	7. The science of spectres, or spectrology	97
	8. 'A shadowy semblance with a certain intimation of being': Photo-technics and fantomachia	102
	9. A posthumous photograph and a death mask: The media of imprinting and disappearing	106
	10. (G)HOSTage: to be held hostage by ghosts	113

5	Gesture and its (proto-)medial thresholds Richard Müller	127
	1. The mediality of the semantic gesture and unintentionality	131
	The medial 'symptomaticity' of semantic gesture	131
	Intentionality and unintentionality as media phenomena	135
	The protomedial thresholds of gesture	138
	2. The mediality of communication between gesture and speech	140
	Gesture, speech, rhythm and graphism	140

	On the origin of the medial differentiation of the sign (‘mythogram’)	144
	Double unintentionality?	147
	3. Gesture and intentionality in ‘The Vane Sisters’ (1951)	152
6	Openness: The information (cybernetics) moment in literary theory and experimental poetry of the 1950–60s Richard Müller	167
	1. Prelude: I wish you had heard his ‘Nevermore’	168
	2. The cybernetic turn	170
	3. From entropy to perceiver	172
	Jakobson: The first mediator	172
	Between information theory and cybernetics	176
	Eco: The Open Work and its ‘legacy’	184
	Problems of The Open Work	189
	Communication models and the birth of the reader	198
	Červenka: The process and organization of a literary work, aesthetic function and focus on the univers de discours	199
	4. The Czech ‘poetry of new consciousness’ in the Information Age	206
	A sense of crisis and cultural breakdown	208
	Inherent problems of media classification	209
	Different conceptual and ideational sources and goals	214
	Machine poetry and the construction of scienticity: The meaning effect	217
	New modes of reading and perception	220
	5. The information (cybernetics) moment from the perspective of experimental poetry (and vice versa)	222
7	Technics and media Tomáš Chudý	229
	1. The technological unconscious as shift in the role of media (Kapp, Thrift, Ihde, McLuhan)	229
	Ernst Kapp, Nigel Thrift and technics theory after Gilbert Simondon	231
	Don Ihde and the phenomenology of technics	236
	The recursive loop and Erhard Schüttpelz	238
	The narcotization of media: McLuhan (and successors inspired by semiotics: Winkler)	241

2.	Processing, manipulation and discursive economics	246
	Manovich: The persistence of representations	246
	Kittler: Manipulation without the concept of a sign	248
	Winkler: Processing and discursive economics	254
3.	Infogenic man and the software explosion	262
	Conclusion	269
8	Communication, solution and mediality: The paradoxical character of Williams's thinking on the medium Josef Šebek	279
	1. Culture and communication	280
	2. Technique, technology and cultural form: The medium and technological determinism	284
	3. Solution: The medium within social signification systems	289
	4. A media theory of literature?	297
9	Social systems theory and the medium Tomáš Chudý	303
	1. The improbability of communication and double contingency	303
	2. The medium of the 'artwork' and the code of art	310
	Epilogue: Media forms	319
10	Poetics – semiosphere – medium: Lotman's cultural semiotics at the crossroads Richard Müller	327
	1. Points of departure	327
	2. Lotman's crossroads and borders	331
	Prologue: Uncertainty and the dream as a (pre-)media phenomenon	331
	Towards cultural dynamics	333
	The semiosphere and the mediality of memory	344
	Commentary from a media-genealogical perspective	346
	3. Lotman's semiotics and technology	350
	The memory function and the technological dispositif	350
	The creative function and text generation by neural networks	351
	Appendix 1: The phantom of interactivity and the dimensions of immersion (Marie-Laure Ryan)	358
	A hologram or the simultaneity of media (un)awareness?	360

Media diversity as a corrective of the dichotomy of ‘interactivity’ and ‘immersion’	361
Appendix 2: A return to Iser: Reading, image and indeterminacy	364
The image as metaxy and the reading process	365
11 The theory of intermediality: Apparentness of relations, elusiveness of medium Stanislava Fedrová and Alice Jedličková	373
1. The genealogy of intermediality	373
Prehistory: The paradigm of art and the concept of ut pictura poesis	374
Proto-intermediality: An overlooked member of the family tree	379
Pre-intermediality: Comparative arts, interart studies	383
2. Intermediality: The systemization of theory and the establishment of the discipline	391
Motivations for change: The state of culture and the academic discourse	391
The background of intertextuality: An expanding scope under the influence of visual studies	392
Seeking a perfect model: Literature-centred intermediality	394
3. An established discipline	402
Critiques of existing models and new emphases	402
Searching for an umbrella term	404
Stimuli and competition: Narratology, transmedia storytelling and adaptation studies	406
Finally, a definition of medium : The concept of modality	412
4. The identity of research: Flexibility and continuity	415
Parallel disciplines: Intermediality and multimodality	415
A concept as an argument: Media transformation	419
Processuality and materiality: Latency and presence once again	422
Prospects for the future: Across, inter, in-between, in?	425
 Polylogue: Steps to a media theory of literature Richard Müller, Tomáš Chudý, Alice Jedličková, Josef Šebek and Stanislava Fedrová	433

Media and media processes, defining 'medium' and conceptual genealogy	434
Art and media, and the veiled mediality of literature: A lesson in (and to) intermediality	437
Media archaeology, media evolution?	439
Communication, its aporias and limits, literature, medium and culture	441
Technics	446
Literature and the medium of speech, culture and (contemporary infogenic) society	447

References	453
-------------------	-----

Index	489
--------------	-----