

Contents

List of illustrations	viii
Foreword	ix
Acknowledgements	xii
I Introduction: Ambitions and comparison	1
I Ambitions	1
II Why Hungary and Poland?	4
1 Differences	5
2 Similarities	10
III Insight into the book	13
II Terms: Constitutionalism, illiberal(ism), and constitutional democracy	17
I Constitutionalism in the term “illiberal constitutionalism”	17
1 The need for a new term	17
2 Entangling or disentangling	21
3 Words disentangled	23
4 Conceptual differences	25
II Illiberal(ism)	35
1 Illiberal polity and constitutionalism	35
2 Illiberal in the term “illiberal constitutionalism”	36
3 The term “illiberal(ism)” in the economic and social sphere	40
III Constitutional democracy	42
1 Substantive constitutional democracy	42
2 Formal constitutional democracy and illiberal constitutionalism	44
III Identity: Unbalanced constitutional identity: emotions and values	46
I Historical and emotional trajectory	47
1 Framework of investigation	47

2 Hungarian national identity – more than a stereotype	49
3 National identity and Poland	55
II Post-communist past and beyond	60
III Possible root cause: the combination of the above	64
1 Populism – playing with emotions	65
2 Collective narcissism and collective victimhood	68
IV Limits: Comparative perspective	71
I The emergence of illiberal constitutionalism	71
II A comparative perspective – looking for constraints	73
III Contextualization: the European Rule of Law as a constraint on public power	83
1 Rule of Law as a context-related notion	83
2 “European” in the term “European Rule of Law”	85
3 “Rule of Law” in the term “European Rule of Law”	90
4 The European Rule of Law – a rudimentary concept	94
V Limits: Constraints in constitutional design and identity	96
I Illiberal legality	96
1 The term	96
2 Legal features of illiberal legality	98
II Illiberal democracy	108
1 The term	108
2 Electoral democracy – illiberalization	111
3 Procedure in parliament	115
III Illiberalization of human rights	124
1 Steps towards illiberalization and common challenges	124
2 Struggling with international and supranational obligations	127
3 The illiberal vision of human rights	132
4 Emerging new understanding of human rights (third phase of illiberalization)	148
VI Stability: How “illiberal limits” emerge and work	150
I Capturing constitutions and constitutionalism, and creating invisible constitution	150
1 Bird’s-eye view of 1989–2020: dismemberments, replacements, formal, informal, and abusive amendments	151
2 Formal constitutional changes	153
3 Informal unconstitutional constitutional changes	157

4	The paradox of unconstitutional formal and informal constitutional amendments	169
5	Capturing key positions	171
II Illiberal judicialization of politics 173
1	Bird's-eye view of legal constitutionalism and juristocracy, so ...	175
2	... illiberal constitutionalism is not about political constitutionalism but ...	179
3	... illiberal judicialization of politics	180
III Pushing the limits and bouncing back 184
1	Rules	184
2	Techniques	185
IV Defeating exit strategies from the hollowed-out constitutional democracy 190
1	Militant democracy	190
2	The multi-tiered amendment designs and references to transnational norms	192
3	Application of the doctrine of unconstitutional constitutional amendments – and a paradox	193
4	Empowering citizens	194
5	Emergency judicial power	194
6	Other ...	195
 VII Conclusions		 197
1	Constitutionalism does not necessarily have to be liberal	197
2	Illiberal constitutionalism is a deterioration from liberal constitutionalism towards authoritarianism but has not reached that point yet	197
3	In an illiberal constitutional identity, the liberal and non-liberal or illiberal value orientation of the population can intermittently prevail	198
4	Illiberal constitutionalism is a coherent theory in its illiberal and weakly constrained manner	198
5	Lessons learned, mostly, for others ...	199
 Bibliography		 200
Index		220