

CONTENTS

I	Introduction	5
II	Dialogic teaching: the case and the evidence
	Introduction	9
	Learning to talk, talking to learn	10
	Communicative rights and cognitive challenge	14
	Initiatives and agendas	17
	Learning from other countries	19
	-From interactive whole class teaching to dialogic teaching	21
	Extending the repertoire	28
	Talking and knowing	32
	- Dialogue and assessment for learning	32
	Dialogue and citizenship	33
	- Dialogue, personalisation and lifelong learning	34
	The new pedagogical nexus?	35
III	Dialogic teaching: principles, repertoires and indicators
	Justifications	37
	Principles	37
	Repertoires (i): talk for everyday life	38
	- Repertoires (ii): talk for teaching	38
	- Repertoires (iii): talk for learning	39
	Repertoires (iii): organisational contexts	40
	Indicators	40
IV	Into practice
	Evidence from the classroom	45
	The persistence of recitation	47
	Dilemmas not deficits	48
	Form and content	50
	- Postscript: the indivisibility of learning through dialogue	53
V	Support materials and further reading
	Support materials	55
	- Wider perspectives	57
	Dialogue, voice and the Cambridge Primary Review	59