

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
Introduction: Leveraging paradox: toward a Big Bang Theory of Creative Writing Graeme Harper	1
1 Creative writing and the limits of Naming What We Know : threshold concepts from aesthetic theory and creativity studies in the literary writing curriculum Janelle Adsit	9
2 Resonance and absence: a text world analysis of 'Tuonela' by Philip Gross Nigel McLoughlin	18
3 Building and mobilizing a sustainable, knowledge-based culture for creative writing studies Dianne Donnelly	29
4 Shakespeare's dogfish: a case for building Creative Writing Studies from the outside Michael Dean Clark	39
5 The poetics of distraction Katharine Coles	47
6 The creative writing doctoral thesis: insights from genetic criticism Jeri Kroll	52
7 Creative writing in Brazil: personal notes on a process Bernardo Bueno	74

8	'A real hunger': English literature, cultural engagement, and China Jamie Andrews	82
	Conclusion: The states of creative writing Graeme Harper	92
	Index	97