

Table of contents

I. Social Networks: Some Sources and Some Concepts

- Hessel Miedema 11
Kinship and network in Karel van Mander
- Axel Marx 25
Why Social Network Analysis might be relevant for art historians: a sociological perspective
- Koenraad Brosens 43
Can tapestry research benefit from economic sociology and Social Network Analysis?
- Neil De Marchi and Hans J. Van Miegroet 53
Uncertainty, family ties and derivative painting in seventeenth-century Antwerp

II. Kinship Patterns: Some Family Circles and Some Networks

- Rudi Ekkart 77
Dutch family ties: painter families in seventeenth-century Holland
- Brecht Dewilde 85
On noble artists and poor craftsmen: networking painters in Renaissance Bruges
- Natasja Peeters 103
From Nicolaas to Constantijn: the Francken family and their rich artistic heritage (c. 1550–1717)
- Miroslav Kindl 119
The De Herdt (De Harde) family in the service of Emperor Leopold in Vienna

III. Family Likeness: Some Fathers and Some Sons

- Nils Büttner 131
Rubens & son
- Jeremy Howarth 145
The Steenwyck paintings, products of family enterprise
- Hans Vlieghe 159
Going their separate ways: the artistic inclinations and paths of David Teniers I, II and III
- Prisca Valkeneers 171
Justus van Egmont (1602–1674) and his workshop in Paris

IV. Commercial Connections: Some Merchants and Some Merry men

- Bert Timmermans 189
Family, agency and networks of patronage: towards a mapping of the revival of the family chapel in seventeenth-century Antwerp
- Alison Stoesser 225
Lucas and Cornelis de Wael: their family network in Antwerp and beyond